Much Ado About Nothing

by William Shakespeare

2 - 12 April 2008

One of Shakespeare's brightest comedies, this is the tale of the feisty Beatrice (Sarah Hills), who wants never to get married and be submissive to a husband, in particular Benedick (Mark Campbell) - or so she says. And so he says.

But they are tricked into believing each is in love with the other, and this brings about a genuine sympathy between them. Meanwhile a contrasting love match is brought into jeopardy by conniving and lies, when Hero (Rachel De Silver) is slandered and Claudio (Steve Padgham) believes what he hears...

“Will true love stand the test?” asks director Richard Banks. “Will Beatrice and Benedick ever get over their squabbling? Will evil triumph? Well, the answers are all contained in the last scene and I’m not going to spoil it for you. Do come along and enjoy the humour and the action - it really does have something for everyone.”

The play also features Tony Donnelly, Paul Friett, Karen Friett, Roger Gollop, Richard Gooderson, David Hampton, and Viv and Horry Stapleton
